The Voice of Business in South Dublin County

South Dublin CHAMBER
IN BUSINESS FOR BUSINESS

Address from Brian Buckley President South Dublin Chamber

On becoming President of the Chamber this year I was aware that most of our members were in a difficult position and facing into an uncertain future. What struck me most in talking to members was how strong they were in their resolve to address this situation and bring their business through the challenges both present and those that lie ahead.

The Chamber throughout 2010 has worked with our members to ensure our services and our representation reflect the real needs of the membership. We are fortunate that we have an active membership, one that has ownership of our organisation.

The business environment is shaped at many levels and through many factors. Our lobbying at the local County Council level has been primarily focused on the cost of doing business and in tandem with lobbying South Dublin County Council, we work on many projects with them for the benefit of business. At national level, assisted by Chambers Ireland we are lobbying on the need to increase liquidity in the business arena, the need to reduce bureaucracy in the administration of business in Ireland and the need to have a shared vision of where we are aiming to be as a national business community. Issues such as the upgrading of Newlands Cross, development of Alternative Energy in the County particularly geothermal energy and the need for greater access to broadband remain as key objectives locally.

Our networking opportunities through our Chamber B2B network in Tallaght, Citywest, Greenogue and the M50 based in the red Cow Hotel plus our extensive events calendar offer all members the opportunity to increase business contacts and promote their products and services. It is very positive to see so many business people determined to move forward and networking offers the opportunities to do so. Events such as the Don't Lunch Alone programme also offer educational and training benefit to members. We have, where possible, kept our events and networking free to members in 2010. 95% of all South Dublin Chamber events / programmes / activities will be free to members.

This autumn will be an important time for lobbying and setting out our vision of a recovery programme to help business. I would appreciate if you could share your thoughts on this matter with the Chamber and let me know what you believe would assist your business either locally / nationally or at a European level, I would like to hear from you. Email: business@sdchamber.ie

In closing I would like to acknowledge and thank the Council members who stepped down this year in particular Brian O'Reilly one of our founding members and welcome on board our new Council members. Con McCarty did an excellent job as President and on behalf of us all I would like to acknowledge and thank him for the two years he gave to developing and growing the Chamber and his continued involvement in the Chamber Council.

Lobbying Representation

Taoiseach Brian Cowen visits SD Chamber members.

Lobbying and representation of members concerns and needs is a key part of the Chamber's agenda. Michael McBennett Deputy President is coordinating our Campaign this year and we welcome members getting involved in this area of work or just letting us know the issues that are affecting their business. Among items that are on the list for the coming six months are business costs particularly those charged by local government. Governmental bureaucracy and how it prevents and stymies the development of business will be challenged. Infrastructure issues such as Newlands Cross and the barriers to providing modern telecommunications infrastructure witnessed by how difficult it is for some members to get broadband or a good mobile phone signal will also be addressed.

The Chamber is proactive and we will be championing new economic developments such as alternative energy and biotechnology in our county. If you have views on what you would like the Chamber to be lobbying and representing you on please email business@sdchamber.ie and through our external representative and our lobbying campaign we will ensure it gets heard.

Deep Geothermal Power On The Way?

GT Energy and the Sandymark Group report that further recent testing and seismic analysis of the potential to harness deep geothermal power at Newcastle has proven to be very encouraging and the group now believes that the resource at this location is of sufficient quality to generate electricity as well as being capable of producing significant quantities of residual heat. They hope to begin construction of the 35 million euro facility in 2011. If all goes according to plan the plant could be producing enough electricity to power the equivalent of 3,500 average sized houses by 2012. The Chamber is delighted with this news as it provides a national lead in the renewable energy sector.

The Chamber strongly believes that renewable energy research and generation as well as supporting industries can play a powerful role in our economic recovery. The Chamber recognises the very supportive role being played by Minister Conor Lenihan in his role as Minister of State at the Department of Communications, Energy and Natural Resources. Indeed the local political support for this project across most of the political spectrum is very welcome. Given the national significance of the project it is extremely important that whatever needs to be done politically and otherwise is done to ensure that this investment is not derailed.

Pictured (l-r): General Manager Clarion Hotel Liffey Valley Garrett Marrinan. Minister for Enterprise, Trade and Innovation Batt O'Keeffe. South Dublin Chamber CEO Peter Byrne and Chambers Ireland Chairperson and South Dublin Chamber member Dónall Curtin welcoming the Minister to the County

Minister for Enterprise, Trade & Innovation Batt O'Keefe visited Lucan to speak at Chambers Irelands Strategic Meeting of CEOs and Presidents. Peter Byrne CEO welcomed the Minister and highlighted the key issues affecting our county. The Minister, addressing the delegates in the Clarion Hotel Liffey Valley, spoke of the need for unity in addressing our economic situation and asked for Chambers to work with Government in moving forward. Chambers highlighted the urgency of the cashflow situation for many of our members and the need for Government to be imaginative in coming forward with solutions.

Local Government Savings must be passed back to Business

Chambers Ireland has welcomed the publication of the report of the Local Government Efficiency Review Group. Hilary Haydon, Ratepayers and Local Government Council Chair said, "Restructuring the system of Local Government in Ireland provides a real opportunity to introduce new and more efficient ways of providing local services."

Whilst much of this will require further examination through the White Paper on Local Government, this report provides the first steps to achieving this change.

"We note that if implemented in their entirety, the reforms outlined by the Review Group would result in savings of in the region of €511 million. Given that business has been the funder of 'last resort' for many local authorities, it follows that a significant amount of the cost savings achieved must be passed back to businesses in the form of reduced rates and other charges."

South Dublin Chamber Member Tries his Hand at Something Different

Peter Nicholson, Managing Director of Outsource Graphix, a long standing member of the Chamber has tried his hand at writing a series of Children's Self Help Books with great success.

Along with his writing partner Fiona McAuslan they have published the first 3 books in the Resolving Books Series covering subjects such as Bullying, Anger Management and Sibling Rivalry. The books are for children aged between 4 and 12ish. They were launched in March of this year and have already hit the top 10 book sales in Ireland, the books are also going down a treat in the UK and Canada.

Peter said that the next market they are interested in is the States which he will be approaching in November of this year to co-inside with the launch of the fourth book in the series "Resolving Bereavement". This book was specifically requested by Fergus Finlay of Barnardos as there is a real need for a book that helps children deal with the loss of a close family member. Other titles in the pipelines include "Resolving Racism" and "Resolving Separation".

The books are simple, straightforward, but very clever tools. They work to help children realise how the characters in the books reflect their own situation. They explain why they are in the situation and help them in working out ways of resolving the problems, normally with the guidance of their parents, teachers, guardians, counsellors and friends.

Visit www.resolvingbooks.com or your local Easons or Veritas stores.
